A rare opportunity to acquire a specimen of the extraordinary Victoria cruziana, the giant South American water lily celebrated for its dramatic floating leaves and ephemeral nocturnal blooms. Propagated at Lotusland, this remarkable aquatic plant reflects a horticultural tradition that began in the 1950s when founder Madame Walska first introduced Victoria water lilies to the Garden's celebrated Water Garden.

Revered for both its sculptural beauty and botanical significance, the Victoria cruziana transforms still water into a living spectacle, evoking the grandeur and romance of the great tropical gardens of the world.
