Cycads: The Most Threatened Plant Group on the Planet
LETTER FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Dear Friends,

What is it at Lotusland that most inspires you?

For me, inspiration drawn from the Garden changes daily. One day it might be the sound of a birdsong, the pattern on the black bamboo, or the sheer scale of the Dracaena draco. Other times it is a cycad coning or the rhythmic flow of falling water. Truly, everywhere you look at Lotusland is inspiring, and to immerse in the beauty and embrace of nature provides comfort and a sense of connection.

Inspiration at Lotusland is endless. Nature provides a sanctuary, a place to return to for a wellspring of enhanced health, vitality and comfort. It is fitting that our first online art sale and companion exhibition at GraySpace gallery that opened on Earth Day, is entitled Sanctuary. This collaboration has brought together the best of the region’s extended community with the inspired responses of the thirty-six local artists who have been excitedly exploring and creating with material from the Garden in recent months.

Lotusland’s community volunteers and Exhibition curators, the dynamic team of Ashley Woods Hollister and Casey Turpin, invited this diverse group of makers and artists who have been creating with material from the Garden this spring. Each participating artist responded to the Sanctuary theme in a completely personal and original interpretation, with an artful array of landscapes, photographs, sculpture, and even surfboards depicting their impressions of the verdant landscape of Lotusland. All of their sales support our sustainability programs, to further promote the abundance of and healthful benefits of an organic and regenerative garden.

This Exhibition and Sale advances our work in sharing our sustainability practices beyond the pink walls, as well as provides exceptional care for Lotusland’s living collections.

Don’t forget to schedule a visit to Lotusland this season to draw your own inspiration from our majestic garden to help cultivate your interpretation of nature as a sanctuary.

To your inspiration,

Rebecca Anderson

MISSION

We preserve and enhance the unique, historic estate of Madame Ganna Walska, care for and improve its collections, and develop its conservation and horticulture programs, so they educate us, inspire us, and advance our understanding and appreciation of the importance of plants in our lives and in the life of the planet.
LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Happy Spring everyone! In our last issue we celebrated our outstanding volunteer corps. In this issue, I get to celebrate one particular volunteer who has been absolutely instrumental in Lotusland’s recent successes by announcing that Connie Flowers Pearcy has been named as a Lifetime Honorary Trustee.

Connie’s prestigious new title follows many others that she has held over the years: volunteer, committee member, Board member, Board President, and now, Lifetime Honorary Trustee. Connie’s involvement with Lotusland started in 2010, when she served on the Development Committee. Connie has served on the Lotusland Celebrates Committee and the Nominating Committee. She quickly grew into Lotusland leadership, serving as the Development Committee Chair from 2012 through 2015. From 2013-2018, Connie was a member of the Executive Committee, serving as the Board’s Vice President in 2013. In 2014, Connie served as the First Vice President and, from 2015 through 2017, she served as the Board President. Connie remained on the Board through 2020.

But Connie’s leadership has not been limited to the extraordinary amount of time that she dedicated to Lotusland, for Connie has also been an incredibly generous donor to Lotusland. Her gifts include funds that enabled us to drill a new well to continue our sustainable gardening practices with assurance of ample water; and she funded “Connie’s Potties” at three of our Lotusland Celebrates parties! Connie has been a leading sponsor of Celebrates; and she made a generous donation to the Japanese Garden renovation. Connie has been an ardent supporter of the Exceptional Plants events, and has consistently made generous gifts to our Gifts for the Garden annual campaigns. Connie has simply been indispensable to the success and future of Lotusland.

And if all of that were not enough, Connie has agreed to lead our forthcoming Philanthropy Committee, about which you will hear more in the future. When you see Connie in the Garden or around town, please be sure to thank her for all that she has done for Lotusland!

Lesley Cunningham, President, Board of Trustees
Cycads are a fascinating, ancient lineage of cone-bearing plants, many of which have an uncanny resemblance to palms. They were a dominant part of the flora during the Jurassic Period, so much so that the Age of the Dinosaurs was also known as the Age of the Cycads. Modern day cycads are much different than the plants the dinosaurs munched on and have diversified from a few lineages approximately 12 million years ago. Their current geographic distribution spans throughout the tropics and subtropics. As dioecious plants, each is a different sex and they have a unique pollination method involving insects that are typically specific to a certain cycad. The insects tend to spend the majority of their lifecycle in the male cone and as pollen is shed, the cone begins to heat up and volatizes chemical compounds to flush out the insects. With pollen attached, the female cone entices the pollen laden insects to enter with a similar mechanism. Lacking these native pollinators here at Lotusland, we mimic the insects, artificially pollinating the female cones with harvested pollen that is injected into the receptive female cone. Not only do we propagate cycads for Garden Shop sales and our Exceptional Plants auction, but we especially keep an eye out for plants of conservation value.

In terms of scientific research and plant conservation, the cycad collection is the most important plant collection at Lotusland. The collection contains over 450 specimens and more than 40% of all the known species. Within the collection 43% of the species are threatened with extinction and five are believed to be extinct in the wild, existing only in gardens such as Lotusland. According to renowned cycad expert and Lotusland Research Associate Jeff Cheinnick, “Lotusland’s cycad collection is one of the 10 most important in a public garden anywhere in the world today.”

As cycads and plants in general become more threatened botanic gardens and their conservation networks are more relevant than ever as they become increasingly interconnected and function as collaborative units that work across borders. Much as zoos do with animals, botanic gardens are important life rafts for threatened species ensuring they don’t go extinct, working to reverse the trend through captive breeding programs. Cycads are considered the most threatened plant group on the planet – some experts say the most threatened group of organisms.

Throughout the years, Lotusland has worked to support efforts towards cycad conservation by joining and being involved with many of the organizations that are contributing to saving cycads around the world. The cycad collection at Lotusland is part of an accredited multi-site collection of.
Ganna Walska Lotusland is working with the International Union for the Conservation of Nature’s Species Survival Commission Cycad Specialist Group and the newly formed Botanic Gardens Conservation International’s Global Conservation Consortium for Cycads to develop an ex situ assurance colony for Encephalartos heenanii, a South African cycad now believed to be extinct in the wild. In 2011 Lotusland produced seed of E. heenanii for the first time ever in the United States and what is most likely the first time in a public garden anywhere. This project signifies the first action in a revised Species Survival Action Plan for E. heenanii and we are collaborating with colleagues in South Africa to set the groundwork for future reintroductions. We must raise another $50,000 to construct this new secure growing facility with raised beds to grow E. heenanii and other important plants more quickly to maturity for future propagation.

Horticultural Happenings

TAKING ACTION TO SAVE OUR CYCADS

AROLLARIA, OR OAK ROOT FUNGUS, is a naturally occurring pathogenic fungus that significantly affects various plant groups at Lotusland. We have discovered over the years that when we find an infected plant there is a woody host in the soil nearby in the form of a buried tree stump or large root. Armillaria exists as a saprophyte on this dead plant material and from there infects surrounding plants. When a plant is seen declining from Armillaria it is already heavily infected causing roots to rot and showing the tell-tale white mycelium around the base of the plant.

In December 2019 Lotusland detected an alarming profusion of Armillaria mushrooms in part of the Cycad Garden. In December 2020 staff saw another flare up of Armillaria with mushrooms appearing at the base of additional cycads. This area houses plants in the Mexican genus Dioon including some rare and threatened species.

In pictures from the mid-1970s, when the garden was being constructed, there appears to be some Eucalyptus trees in this area. In the intervening years many of these trees were removed to allow for more sun yet the stumps remained. We believe these remnant stumps are the source of the Armillaria that has infected 25 plants in the area and unfortunately, may be affecting other adjacent plants. These 25 plants have already been removed, excised of infected tissue and are re-rooting in the nursery.

We are currently working to raise funds for an emergency renovation of this portion of the Garden in which we will use the same methods of a successful Armillaria remediation two decades ago in a different part of the Cycad Garden. The project entails hiring a contractor to excavate the site and remove roots, stumps and infected soil. Lotusland staff will direct the excavation and the removal of additional plants. The contractor will install drainage throughout much of the garden. A custom soil mix and amendments determined by Lotusland staff will be brought in and plants will be re-planted, irrigation installed and the area mulched. We have additional plants of Dioon in the nursery from a collecting expedition in 2004 and this will afford us the opportunity to plant and display these special plants.

—Paul Mills, Curator of the Living Collections

BY THE EARLY 1970S Madame Walska had amassed one of the greatest cycad collections in the country. Today, Lotusland is successfully engaged in the critical work of protecting threatened and endangered species of plants from around the world and saving them from extinction. Among those plants are Cycads – some of the most threatened plants on the planet. As the Garden was being built, Charlie Glass (the first garden director), wrote Madame, “This will be one of the greatest achievements of our lives.”

Today, more than 40% of the species in Lotusland’s Cycad collection are threatened with extinction and at least three are already extinct in the wild – they exist only in botanical gardens. Lotusland is at the forefront of the international scientific community to save these rarest of plants. Your support helps to advance and accelerate this critical work, and ensure Lotusland’s participation, prominence, and impact in the global conservation community.

YOUR CONTRIBUTION MATTERS!
Gifts of all sizes have a big impact. To make a gift to Save the Cycads, please contact Patricia Sadeghian, Donor Relations Manager 805.969.3767, ext. 125 or psadeghian@lotusland.org, or give online at www.lotusland.org/cycad.
A SPECIAL JAPANESE BLACK PINE
(Pinus thunbergii) was recently moved to its new home at Lotusland. This pine tree was decades in the making, enmeshed with Lotusland’s history.

Frank Fujii, one of the original designers of Lotusland’s Japanese Garden, received a call from Catherine Gainey in the mid 1980s, requesting he prune her pine trees. She had ten pine trees that were surrounded by six eight-foot-high junipers that had taken over her front yard. Frank started the process of bringing structure into these large pines. He believed that they should look as natural as possible and never wanted trees that were unnaturally shaped into balls—this was Mrs. Gainey’s philosophy as well.

I began working at Lotusland in 1986 and Frank began mentoring me in the artoform of Japanese-style pruning. I often helped him with his other work, and it was then that I took over the pruning of Mrs. Gainey’s pine trees. That was 33 years ago and continue to prune them to this day.

While this specialized pruning follows many meticulous bonsai (tray planting or plant in a container/pot) guidelines, Frank preferred a more naturalistic niwaki (garden tree) style. Bonsai and niwaki share many of the same foundations for pruning and maintenance; there are similarities, such as striving to recreate the beauty of nature on a much smaller scale and pruning trees to look older than they really are. I often say this technique takes years to learn and understand, but moments to appreciate.

When working on a tree you are thinking about a plan, from the first year to far into the future, decades down the line. These trees are living artforms that as an artist you have a hand in shaping. After understanding the many guidelines and fundamentals, you delve into the tree. Key to the process is allowing the character or the essence of that tree to dictate your approach and finding the beauty in the tree and bringing it out. You must incorporate a knowledge of horticulture into this process to keep the tree healthy. Doing so can extend the lifespan of these cultivated trees beyond that of their wild counterparts.

One of the biggest challenges Japanese gardens face today is the loss of skilled craftspeople to maintain and prune specimen trees. Many gardens have gone the way of creating ball shapes all over a tree. It can take years for a tree to recover from this damage. We strive to pass on traditions, historical context, and knowledge while pruning. With the support of Lotusland to teach gardeners and volunteers, I am passing on the knowledge just as Frank Fujii did with me. Out of respect for Madame’s legacy and Frank’s vision, these techniques will continue into the future.

For more than 35 years Mrs. Gainey appreciated what went into caring for these pine trees and she always supported the extra time and effort that went into creating these beautifully sculpted trees, most of them reaching 15-20 feet. Sadly, Mrs. Gainey passed away last year. The Gainey family has generously donated a black pine tree in honor of their mom to hold a special place at the new Bank Lantern entrance to the Japanese Garden. Moving this tree to Lotusland was no small feat. With the hard work of Steve Hanson Landscaping’s crew it took three days to bring it to its new home. A special thank you to longtime Lotusland volunteer George Burtness who generously provided the funds for the move.

To learn to prune with Terri as a volunteer in the Japanese Garden, please contact Kitty Thomassin, kthomassin@lotusland.org.
Feminism was in the news on November 30, 1923 when five hundred women travelled to Chicago for a conference of the National Women’s Party (NWP). They met at the Rush Street family mansion of Mr. Harold McCormick and his newlywed second wife, Madame Ganna Walska. Two weeks after this meeting, an Equal Rights Amendment drafted by the NWP was introduced in Congress. It was not enacted.

A lifetime member of the NWP, Madame Walska became a more vocal feminist in 1928-29, when she stood up for the right of women to have an independent residence from their husbands. In September 1928, Ganna Walska arrived in New York from her home in Paris with numerous trunks of personal effects for her upcoming American concert tour. Claiming that she was a non-resident, she refused to pay $1,000,000 in duties. When she proved that she had bought most of her possessions in the US before going to France her customs liability dwindled to $40.20. A New York Times article stated that “she fought with characteristic tenacity and much publicity for the principle involved.”

Testifying on the witness stand in federal customs court, other newspaper articles of the time quoted her as saying, “This is not a personal matter, nor is it to avoid paying the duty. I am fighting now to establish the legal equality of women in the eyes of the United States government and recognition of a wife’s right to live where she chooses.”

In February 1929 Ganna Walska, along with a delegation of members of the NWP, came to Capitol Hill in Albany to speak on the issue and meet with (then) Governor Franklin Roosevelt. During her appeal before the New York Judiciary Committee Ganna Walska asked that the separate domicile bill be amended to include legacy rulings and taxation. The domicile measure passed the assembly that March, but in such a form as to only provide that women could vote or hold office at their place of residency.

Ever the optimist, Ganna Walska predicted that “In a few years, after the equal rights bill has passed the various State legislatures, it will be adopted by the United States Congress as an amendment to the Constitution.”

To date, the nearly-century-old Equal Rights Amendment has yet to be added to the Constitution, providing equal protection under the law regardless of sex.

RESTORATION OF THE PINK WALL

Thank You Lady Leslie Ridley-Tree

Aside from its breathtaking living collections, there is hardly an element of Lotusland more full of lore and love than the iconic pink wall. If you live nearby, you may have noticed repairs taking place on this distinguishing feature of the estate. After years of increasing deterioration, a community hero stepped forward to rescue the issues of the wall surrounding Lotusland.

When she became aware of the need to restore areas of the pink wall, ever-gracious Lotusland supporter Lady Leslie Ridley-Tree jumped at the call, with a gift to support the restoration of this iconic feature. Not one to let a community need go unattended, these repairs to the perimeter wall will help to ensure neighborhood goodwill, improve visitor impressions, and enhance the allure of the horticultural treasures that lie within.

Lady Ridley-Tree has been a philanthropic member of Lotusland for the last 26 years. Her ongoing support through her membership, sponsorship of our annual Lotusland Celebrates event and investments in capital improvements have helped Lotusland achieve its standing as one of the top botanical institutions in the world.

We thank Lady Ridley-Tree for her generous and loyal support of Lotusland and celebrate her spirited contribution. This gift will be enjoyed and recognized by Lotusland as well as our wider community for many years to come.

IMPACTFUL PHILANTHROPY

Executive Director Action Fund

We were thrilled to receive a $20,000 gift to establish a new fund for use exclusively at the discretion of the Executive Director. This fund will support emergency needs that arise, or other opportunities or programs which require immediate attention. Named the ‘Executive Director Action Fund,’ it covers any contingency up to $10,000, and any unused funds remain in the fund for use the next year.

Executive Director, Rebecca Anderson, recently advised Lotusland board members “With this gift, and future gifts that are directed to this fund, Lotusland will be able to quickly solve problems that often could not be anticipated and were not included in our budget.” This outstanding gift of $20,000 will help Lotusland purchase new directional signage needed throughout the Garden to support our visitors and Members in enjoying and exploring the Garden on self-guided tours instituted as part of our COVID safety response. “With this gift, we are able to quickly solve our most pressing challenges. Especially during these stressful times, the fund provides real solutions and peace of mind,” says Rebecca.

Having seen success in this strategic philanthropy in other organizations, these wonderful donors make Lotusland the fourth organization where they have seeded a similar contingency fund for the leadership. We are grateful to be a part of their purposeful philanthropy and invite others to join with gifts to this new fund. For more information, or to contribute, please contact 805.969.3767, ext. 104.
A BENEFIT EVENT FROM THE GARDEN, FOR THE GARDEN

Sanctuary

In partnership with GraySpace Gallery and Ruth Ellen Hoag

ON EARTH DAY Lotusland launched a new virtual benefit event entitled, Sanctuary: Lotusland Online Art Sale & Gallery Exhibition

We are so thankful to our curators, participating artists and volunteers for their energy and gifts to support the Garden!

Dear Lotusland,

I heard the breeze pass through your palms. The fronds rustled high above your salmon walls like flags atop a ship's mast declaring, “Here sails a sacred vessel.”

You stood still, contained.

Regally dressed in evergreens, cacti, chartreuse buds.

A peplum of saffron yellow flowers.

I beheld your cool trickling waterways and prehistoric flora.

Your blood-red stamen and velvety moss. Your dripping fruit.

You are a lush sanctuary.

A testament to the ferocious nature of nature’s imagination.

You remind us that what is planted whispers of possibility.

And that we are all gardens of possibility.

Moved to respond to your symphony of ideas in chlorophyll.

WISH LIST
Help Advance Lotusland’s Mission

Online Ticketing
This year, Lotusland will be integrating our Reservations, Visitor Services, Membership and Development databases to allow for online ticketing. In the near future, you will be able to conveniently book your Garden reservation online. This technology requires extensive staff time and expertise to build, and there are significant costs to equip, train and run the powerful new integrated system. Your support will help Lotusland become more efficient and add the convenience of online bookings. Program expense $35,000 annually.

Specimen Plant Fund
This restricted account is used for crucial projects. It is funded completely by donations and affords Lotusland the needed leverage to replace important and historical plants in an aging landscape. Many of the oldest cacti and euphorbias in front of the main house have been lost to old age and are in need of replacement along with many of the large, old Aloe barberae in the Aloe Garden.

At this crucial moment, we are gratefully accepting donations of any size to support these projects. TO DONATE, please call 805.969.3767, ext. 104.

STAFF APPRECIATION
Bob Craig Retires

BOB CRAIG RETIRED IN FEBRUARY after more than seven years of service as Director of Marketing & Communications. His work left an indelible mark on Lotusland, as well as photographic images that continue to tell the story of the Garden. Bob’s contributions were more than artistic and professional. His good nature, sense of humor, and warm personality were a calling card for Lotusland, as he genuinely cared for and connected with each person he encountered. Lotusland’s goal in Marketing focuses on community engagement. Bob’s body of work includes publishing several books about the Garden, creating its first documentary short film, capturing its oral history and creating its 25 year retrospective exhibition. His fingerprints are on countless elements of Lotusland’s digital and print media. He showed the majesty that exists within Lotusland’s gardens and created connections with our community. Bob launched our first online volunteer directory of images and added the Board biographies on our website. Recently he created our Volunteer Appreciation Newsletter cover—a mosaic of the people who power the Garden. Bob’s love of Lotusland and affiliation continue, as he and his wife Vickie are valued members of the Lotus Society, our legacy group supporting our endowment. We appreciate Bob’s devotion and diligence in telling Lotusland’s story so well.

Lotusland Blend Exotic Dark Roast Coffee
Inspired by Lotusland’s exotic, one-of-a-kind plant collections. This complex blend is from five growing regions; Africa, East Asia, Oceania, Central and South America. Taste Asia and Oceania in its rich, creamy and savory chocolate, earthy body. Africa spices things up with a kick of acidity, notes of deep berry and red wine. Central and South America keep the blend bright and balanced with hints of chocolate, fruit and flowers. $12.00/8 ozs.
